Two Claim to Have Heard Robin Singing
Lustily Early Tuesday

Ralph Gonneman and Francis Gonneman are authority for the report of a fine old robin on Madison Avenue early last evening. The robin was most optimistic in regard to an early spring, for he was singing lustily.

Experience in the past in the development of these great United States has proven conclusively that all the component parts are necessary for the upbuilding of the country as a whole. Advancement and progress as well as the high standards attained by the American people have gradually crowded to the background those forces which have a tendency to tear down and destroy and the forces which make for good living are constantly pushing to the foreground.

The average individual does not consider what is necessary for the maintenance of the home community, a desirable place in which to live according to the average American citizen. They rarely take for granted the fact that such communities are provided in large numbers, and they enjoy the privilege of clean living, little realizing how these conditions governing such living have been accomplished or giving credit where it belongs for the years of hard work and struggle on the part of the more aggressive and far seeing who were responsible for them.

Residences are provided and made beautiful in the general scheme of things by individual effort. Commercial organizations and institutions have been established; schools provided; good roads constructed; public organizations maintained—each one of which is a part in the general construction of a law abiding, honest loving, and moral community. But the most important and far reaching in its efforts to promote right living in any community is the influence of the churches and their affiliated societies.

The churches always have been and still are the most potent force in the world today—would be prophets, mournful writers and pessimistic economists to the contrary, notwithstanding.

The history of the churches of Dixon dates back over a period of eighty-four years and their growth has been in harmony with the growth of the city. The churches have been an important factor in bringing about

Reform in Rules of

Senate Dawes' Plea

(Editor's Note.—The text of Vice President Dawes' inaugural address will be published in full tomorrow.)

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Washington, Mr. 4—Reform in the rules of the Senate is demanded by American public opinion and by the conscience of individual senators, Vice President Dawes declared today in his inaugural address.

Under the present rules, he said, "the rights of the American people are overlooked."

He referred especially to the present rule which permits a senator to delay proceedings indefinitely by holding the floor.

Under this rule, the new vice president said, a minority of even one senator can prevent a vote on a measure which two thirds of the Senate has agreed to bring to a vote.

Although the constitution gives congress the right to make its own rules, he said, "this does not excuse customs in the hands of individuals to be used in legislative barters."

GREAT PROBLEM OF ALL TIME IS CHRIST'S RELIGION

So Said Gladstone in Reply to Question By Dr. Talmage.

By L. D. Lamkin

What is the greatest problem of our age? Once Dr. Talmage visited William E. Gladstone, the grand old man of his age, perhaps the greatest forensic thinker of the world. At the dinner table Dr. Talmage asked the great statesman what was the greatest question of our times? Instantly Mr. Gladstone replied: "There is but one question of our time, and that is the religion of Jesus Christ and His acceptance by men." The greatest problem in any human life is to get right with God. A rare and God-appointed opportunity for every man in Dixon to get right with God is now at your door. The revival meeting at the Baptist church conducted by Dr. F. M. Dunk is offering salvation to every wayward life in this city. All you have to do is to come and accept the Saviour he preaches. Last night the sermon was one of those old fashioned gospel messages—A Call to Repentance. It was a searching message of power.

THE SEVENTEENTH AMENDMENT.

The eighteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States has its share of amendment critics, but Judge William J. Graham of Aledo and Washington, former congressmen, attacked the seventeenth amendment in his Lincoln address at a commemorative meeting at the Willard in Washington.

"The seventeenth amendment to the constitution, by which United States senators are elected by popular vote, has lowered the type of membership of that body," said Judge Graham. "The system of checks and balances that so admirably had been established by our fathers was destroyed."

It is improbable now that this amendment ever will be undone, but Judge Graham used it to argue that "the more we let the constitution alone, the better off we will be."

The seventeenth amendment was a result of the same wave that brought us the direct primary, which now is most strongly criticized by its strongest advocates of that time. The theory was that these should constitute the open door to public life for the man who was not attached to a machine. In practice it has not worked that way.

The effect of the direct primary and the election of United States senators by the people has been to limit availability to men of three classes: The man with wealth, the man with a machine, and the demagog with some sort of financial backing.

When legislators selected senators it was possible for them to look over the field of congressmen, men with experience and creditable records in the national legislature and to make a choice therefrom. It was possible for a candidate to serve his district and to be a candidate for a United States senatorship at the same time. If he failed in the senatorship, he could continue in his district. Now if a congressman desires to be a candidate for the senate he must give up his seat in congress, for the primary election for both is on the same date. The result probably is that fewer congressmen are advanced to the senate and more governors or ex-governors are chosen.

The wave of sentiment that carried the seventeenth amendment over was created by the widespread belief—which doubtless was justified to some extent—that rich men bought their senatorial elections by buying state legislators. The constitution originally made the election of senators indirect (that is, by vote of legislatures) so that the senate might not be so quickly changed by popular waves of sentiment as the house of representatives can be—oftentimes by a wave which the people soon regret and repent of. The fathers thought that important changes of policy should be made only after due and calm consideration, and they set the senate, one remove from direct vote of the people, so that it might not react so spasmodically as the house was likely to do. The seventeenth amendment reversed all this, and now the people are not so sure that the change was good one. Charges that senators buy their elections are not much if any more rare than they were before. But charges are quickly and easily made these days, though not always justified.

Judge Graham declared that when he thought of the hard work done by Lincoln as a boy he was inclined to look with disfavor on the proposed child labor amendment.

STARVING MOSQUITOES.

At the recent twelfth annual convention of the New Jersey Mosquito Extermination association at Atlantic City, a new method of ridding any community of this pest was set forth by a bio-chemist.

This is to starve the mosquito larvae to death by putting certain chemicals in the ponds and tiny creeks where the infant anophelites spend their babyhood.

The mosquito larva feeds on bacteria and other minute forms of animal life in the water, all of which can be killed by these chemicals without in any way affecting the visible vegetation or fish.

In the past the method was to kill the eggs or larvae outright by pouring kerosene into the water. But this was hard on fish or plant life there.

It sounds a little complicated to the layman, who wonders at the chemist's cleverness in determining exactly how much of the chemical substances must be used to destroy only the mosquito's food without injuring anything else in the water. But if this works successfully in New Jersey, as it is said to do, it should promptly be introduced at a good many summer resorts elsewhere, though the Jersey skeeter has long had the reputation of being the whale of them all.

THE TOBACCO ARGUMENT.

The crusaders who are starting a movement to abolish tobacco in this country will soon be running up against the following argument, submitted years ago by a young inspired student at the University of Pennsylvania:

"Tobacco is a filthy weed—

I like it!

It satisfies no human need—

I like it!

It makes you thin, it makes you lean,

It takes the hair right off your head,

It's the worst darn stuff I ever seen—

I like it!

And how can anybody answer an argument like that?

Now the English are proposing a quadruple entente—Great Britain, France, Germany and Belgium—as the right way to safeguard France against German aggression. Are they forgetting the league of nations?

Fellowship of Prayer

Daily Lenten Bible reading and meditation prepared for Commission on Evangelism of Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America.

WEDNESDAY
Forgiving Sins

Read Luke 5:17-26. Text 5:24. But why may know that the Son of man hath authority on earth to forgive sins.

MEDITATION—This sick man and his friends asked for healing of the body, but Jesus looked within and saw a greater need. He saw a longing for forgiveness greater than for bodily healing. Jesus read the heart. It is always hard for us to remember that the ills of this world are far more spiritual than material and that if we have spiritual health, material things will largely care for themselves. This man confessed his need. This made possible his salvation. An honest confession opens the door to God's forgiving grace.

Sin that is unconfessed shuts out the energies of grace. Confession makes the soul receptive to the bountiful waters of life. The soul that makes confession to Christ is washed through and through and the seeds of iniquity are driven out.

PRAYER—Lord Jesus, breathe upon us thy healing breath that we may be cleansed from sin and sickness. Reveal thy power in the lives of men. Give us the sense of thy companionship that our voices may be full of gladness and that we may rejoice on our way. Amen.

St. Louis Browns Catcher

Born—Story City, Ia., June 1, 1891. Major League Career—Sold to Cincinnati Reds by Ottumwa of Central Association. Sold by Reds in 1913 to Louisville American Association for $1,000. Played in 1914. Signed by Browns in 1914.

Outstanding Feats—Has dropped but one foul fly ball in the last 10 years. Had 134 assists in 139 games in 1924. Fielded .993 in 1922, the high mark in the majors.

There may be arguments for uniting them all in one department.

Regardless of prophecies and theories, these are the practical things to do.

NO GUNS—NO MURDERS

Once more "guns" New York police rounded up taxicab drivers and took away weapons from such as had them.

Here is one class that is completely disarmed.

Taxi drivers are a limited group all accessible and visible. They are subject to be stopped for inspection at any time.

Possession of a weapon means forfeiture of license, and driving without a license means trouble.

So even bootlegged weapons can be stopped, in this one group.

And when there are no "guns" there will be no more murders. It is physically possible to kill people a thousand ways, and with long premeditated and determined murders it may be done. Not with the casual ones, which is nearly all. As to these—no guns; no murder.

Abolition of Capital Lounging Room Urged

Springfield—Abolition of the lounge room for general assemblymen on the third floor of the state capitol building and use of the floor space it occupies for state administrative departments, is the object of a bill which will be introduced in the house by S. B. Turner, Chicago negro legislator.

"The lounge which is beautifully appointed and equipped is hardly ever used," Turner said, "and is merely an unnecessary expense, especially in view of the fact that many of the state departments are crowded for space. It would be well to use the 90 feet long and its use would materially reduce congestion in state office buildings." His bill would authorize the secretary of state to dispose of the leather upholstered furniture and assign the floor space to various departments.

BAREE, SON OF KAZAN

by James Oliver Curwood

A LOVE EPIC OF THE FAR NORTH

Copyright, 1917, by Doubleday, Page & Co.

"BAREE, SON OF KAZAN," A Vitagraph Picture. With Wolf, the War-Dog.

SYNOPSIS

Baree, son of Kazan and Gray Wolf, reached the climax in the first chapter of his education when he saw an owl swoop down and kill a snowball rabbit. Then the gray owl attacked Baree. The dog buried his teeth in the bird's breast but the owl fastened its beak on Baree's ear. Baree's fangs closed on one of the owl's tender feet and the dog's ear was freed. Together the antagonists fell into a creek and the owl flew away.

When he went on, continuing in the direction he had been following yesterday, he shunk along in a disheartened sort of way. His head and ears were no longer alert, and his curiosity was gone. He was not only stomach-hungry; mother-hunger rose above his physical yearning for something to eat. He wanted his mother as he had never wanted her before in his life. He wanted to snuggle his shivering little body close up to her and feel the warm caressing of her tongue and listen to the mothering whine of her voice. And he wanted Kazan, and the old windfall, and that big blue spot that was in the sky right over it. While he followed again along the edge of the creek, he whimpered for them as a child might grieve.

The forest grew more open after a time, and this cheered him up a little. Also the warmth of the sun was taking the ache out of his body. He grew hungrier and hungrier. He had depended entirely on Kazan and Gray Wolf for food. His parents had, in some ways, made a great baby of him. Gray Wolf's blindness accounted for this, for since his birth she had not taken up her hunting with Kazan, and it was quite natural that Baree should stick close to her, though more than once he had been filled with a great yearning to follow his father. Nature was hard at work trying to overcome its handicap now. It was struggling to impress on Baree that the time had now come when he must seek his own food.

With the thinning out of the forest the creek grew more shallow. It ran again over bars of sand and stones, and Baree began to nose along the edge of these. For a long time he had no success. The few crayfish that he saw were exceedingly lively and elusive, and all the clamshells were shut so tight that even Kazan's powerful jaws would have had difficulty in smashing them. It was almost noon when he caught his first crayfish, about as big as a man's forefinger. He devoured it ravenously. The taste of food gave him fresh courage. He caught two more crayfish during the afternoon.

With the approach of night Baree's fears and great loneliness returned. Before the day had quite gone he found himself a shelter under a big rock, where there was a warm, soft bed of sand. Since his fight with Papaychisew, he had travelled a long distance, and the rock under which he made his bed this night was at least eight or nine miles from the windfall. It was in the open of the creek-bottom, with the dark forest of spruce and cedars close on either side; and when the moon rose, and the stars filled the sky, Baree could look out and see the water of the stream shimmering in a glow almost as bright as day. Directly in front of him, running to the water's edge, was a broad carpet of white sand. Across this sand, half an hour later, came a huge black bear.

Until Baree had seen the otters at play in the creek, his conceptions of the forests had not gone beyond his own kind, and such creatures as owls and rabbits and small feathered things. The otters had not frightened him, because he still measured things by size, and Nekik was not half as big as Kazan. But the bear was a monster beside which Kazan would have stood as a mere pygmy. He was big. If the pleasant conditions that exist in this city in that through their congregations a concerted effort has been made to raise the moral standard of the community.

There are twelve church organizations in Dixon numbering among their membership a large per cent of the population of the city while there are here, as elsewhere, many who practice some form of religion without being members of a particular church. These church organizations are: First Baptist, Saint Luke's Episcopal Church, St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran Church, Grace Evangelical Church, Christian Church, First Methodist Episcopal Church, Church of the Brethren, Immanuel Lutheran Church, St. Patrick's Roman Catholic Church, First Congregational Church, First Presbyterian Church and the First Church of Christ Scientist.

The church facilities of the community are not limited to the city of Dixon alone and church spires can be seen pointing to the heavens from all sections of the country.

First Baptist Church

The oldest church organization in the community dates back to the first religious service ever held in the county. This service was held in Buffalo Grove by residents of that village and Dixon's Ferry. From the first service grew the first church of the county, the "Regular Baptist Church of Dixon's Ferry and Buffalo Grove," which was organized May 28, 1838, with a charter membership of seven. Meetings were held regularly in both towns and by May 1840 the membership had increased to fifty. On April 16, 1842 the members of the two towns separated by mutual consent and the First Baptist Church of Dixon was formed. The first church building was known as the "Baptist Meeting House" which was erected on the west side of Ottawa Street and was dedicated May 5, 1849. This building was used until 1870 when the present church was erected.

With an audible grunt, Wakayoo moved on. Wolves were pests, he argued. They wouldn't stand up and fight. They'd snap and yap at one's heels for hours at a time, and were always out of the way quicker than a wind when one turned on them. What was the use of hanging around where there were wolves, on a beautiful night like this? He lumbered on decisively. Baree could hear him smaller rooms and a kitchen provide ample room for Sunday School and social work. The church has memory windows and installed the first pipe organ in the city of Dixon.

As auxiliaries the Episcopal church maintains St. Anne's Guild, St. Agnes' Guild, St. Margaret's Guild, the Women's Auxiliary, the Church Council, the Sunday School and the Choir.

Kev. George Carlton Story, B. D., has been rector of this church since April 1921 and the growth of the church is shown in the number of communicants which now number 121 with a total of 228 adherents all told.

First Methodist Church

In the year 1842 the first Methodist church building was dedicated in the city. It is of red brick, two-turreted with a bell, and is beautified with art glass windows.

A very fine pipe organ was installed a few years ago and the church is kept in good repair.

A parsonage is provided at 410 Ottawa Street and the total valuation of church property is given as $33,000.00.

The membership of the First Baptist church is now 145 and the Sunday School has an enrollment of 121. Other auxiliaries are a Ladies Aid, Missionary and B. Y. P. U. Rev. L. D. Lambkin has been pastor of this church for a little over a year.

Saint Luke's Episcopal Church

The history of the St. Luke's Episcopal Church, like many others of this section of the country, is closely connected with the history of early days when the intrepid courage of the priests was such a force in opening up this then new country. The first Episcopalian services were held in 1836 and members of this faith were thereafter served by a priest from Grand Rapids until 1858 when a church was formerly organized with 65 communions. The first church home was erected in 1858. This was a small frame structure on Third street which was subsequently sold and remodeled into a dwelling house and is still occupied.

The foundation stone of the present church was laid Sept. 7, 1871 and the church consecrated later that fall. It is a beautiful structure in pure Gothic architecture, built of stone. The main auditorium is divided by three aisles and the church also contains the clerestory, apsidal chapel, while in the basement a large guild room, two

CHAPTER IV

When Baree ventured forth from under his rock at the beginning of the next day, he was a much older puppy than when he met Papa-yuchisew, the young owl, in his path near the old windfall. If experience can be made to take the place of age, he had aged a great deal in the last forty-eight hours. In fact, he had passed almost out of puppyhood. He awoke with a new and much broader conception of the world. It was a big place. It was filled with many things, of which Kazan and Gray Wolf were not the most important. The monsters he had seen on the moonlit plot of sand had roused in him a new kind of caution, and the one greatest instinct of beasts—the primal understanding that it is the strong that prey upon the weak—was wakening swiftly in him.

If he could only find something to eat! That was the master thought that possessed Baree. Instinct had not yet impressed upon him that this which he saw all about him was starvation. He went on, seeking hopefully for food. But at last, as the hours passed, hope began to die out of him. The sun sank westward. The sky grew less blue; a low wind began to ride over the tops of the stabs, and now and then one of them fell with a startling crash. Baree could go no farther. An hour before dusk he lay down in the open, weak and starved. The sun disappeared behind the forest. The moon rolled up from the east. The sky glittered with stars—and all through the night Baree lay as if dead. When morning came, he dragged himself to the stream for a drink. With his last strength he went on. It was the wolf urging him—compelling him to struggle to the last for his life. The dog in him wanted to lie down and die. But the wolf-spark in him burned stronger. In the end it won. Half a mile farther on he came again to the green timber.

St. Paul's Evangelical

Lutheran Church

The St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran Church was organized in Dixon in 1849 with 16 charter members. First services were held in a barn and it was not until 1854 that a church home of their own was erected. This was a two story red brick building with a steeple and bell and cost $4,000.00 besides much labor which was donated. This building was torn down in 1879.

The second church, which was the nucleus about which has been erected the present beautiful home of this congregation, was erected in 1883 at a cost of $14,500.00, and additional donated labor. It was of brick with two steeples and a main entrance in the center of the building.

This church was remodeled and enlarged in 1894 and with the parsonage next door now represents a valuation of $15,000.00. The church contains a large auditorium and three department rooms for Sunday School and social work and has a fine pipe organ.

Seven distinct auxiliaries are maintained. For the past five years, Rev. Lloyd Warren Waller has served this church in the capacity of pastor, and the church has grown to have a membership of 970.

St. Patrick's Church

In the year 1844 about twenty-five members of the Catholic faith were organized into a church in Dixon. For the first few months services were held in the Court House, but later the same year the first little frame church was erected on Fifth street.

The present home of this congregation was dedicated in 1873 and it was damaged by fire but immediately rebuilt. It is a red brick structure and contains a bell weighing 2,500 pounds which cost at that date $900.00. Inside the church, the parish owns the rectory on Peoria Avenue, the school and the Sister's home. The church property, valued at $27,500.00 which is practically all clear, is owned by Rev. Ben Cleaver, who has been pastor of the church since October 1922.

Church of the Brethren

For many years the churches of this denomination spent their entire effort in establishing rural churches. And it has been only in recent years that any attention has been paid to organization of city churches. This is done by establishing mission churches throughout the country which when they are able to take care of themselves are organized into separate churches.

Thus the Church of the Brethren was organized as a mission in Dixon about twenty years ago with a membership of between 30 and 40. About fifteen years ago the church at the corner of Third street and Highland Avenue was erected, and about a year after that the church was organized as a church, although the property belonged to the Mission until about a year ago.

During the past year, the church which is a frame structure, was renovated and painted and a new light fixture installed in the basement and a furnace installed in the parsonage next door. Rev. A. L. Sellers has been pastor since September 1924 and has an auxiliary organization the Womans Aid Society, Prayer Band, Sunday School and three Christian workers societies.

diplomatic achievement of the Hughes administration was the Washington Arms conference, which produced not only the peace agreements but also struck at the heart of the Pan-American and distrust in the Far East. It is difficult to rate the others, but they included the peace treaty with Germany and the subsequent commercial treaty with that country; diplomatic recognition of the Obregon government in Mexico; liquor treaties with various maritime countries in a new attempt to stamp out rum-running, agreements with manzana ports to insure equality of opportunity for American enterprises in the territories involved; initiation of an arbitration between Chile and Peru over Tacna and Arica, and the bringing together of the Central American powers behind a group of treaties designed to foster ordered stability.

On one point Mr. Hughes stood like a rock throughout his administration. That was on the question of recognition of the Soviet regime in Russia. From first to last he refused absolutely to have any official correspondence dealing with it.

What My Neighbor Says

Is of Interest to Dixon Folks.

When one has had the misfortune to suffer from backaches, headaches, dizziness, urinary disorders and other kidney ills—and has found relief from all this sickness and suffering, that person's advice is of untold value to friends and neighbors. The following case is only one of many thousands, but it is that of a Dixon resident. Who could ask for a better example?

For instance, F. J. F. of Highland St., says: "My back ached and mornings when I got up I had bearing down pains in the small of it. I felt tired and worn out and when I stooped it was hard to straighten because of the sharp stabbing catches across my kidneys. I had dizzy spells and specks came before my eyes blinding my sight. My kidneys acted too frequently also. After using Doan's Pills which I bought at the Rowland Drug Store I was rid of the trouble. 6¢ at all dealers. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.—Adv.

ELECTORAL VOTE IS BECOMING AN ANCIENT CUSTOM

Was Intended for Days
When Country Was in Its Youth.

Springfield—Inauguration of President Coolidge this week brings to the fore one of the most ancient customs in American political life which is still religiously adhered to despite the change of years.

It is that of the electoral college casting the ballot for president, an ancient ceremony under the present form of government.

Of the votes which President Coolidge received in the mythical electoral college, 28 came from Illinois. The manner in which they were cast and recorded recalled the days when the government of the United States was young and the electoral college was not merely a name.

The original idea was that each state should select men wise in their judgment who would meet and select a president and a vice-president. The development of political parties with fixed policies, however, soon changed the situation so that the members of the electoral college merely go through the form of casting the ballots in accordance with the dictates of the people at the election.

A proposal to remove the names of these electors from the presidential ballot, made in the 54th general assembly, bids fair to gain enough support to make it a reality. In the past the names of the electors chosen by the various parties have always appeared on the ballot but if the proposed bill is passed their names will merely be filed with the secretary of state and the electoral college will have passed from the public eye in Illinois.

Documents in the office of the clerk of the district court here show the results of the meetings of the various electoral colleges in Illinois since 1856. Some of them are brown with age and covered with dust. The latest, filed this year, is clean and new. All are addressed to the "president of the senate at the seat of government, Washington, D. C.", a custom which has persisted throughout the years.

The copy of the proceedings of the electoral college filed here is merely a security copy. One is sent to Washington by registered mail, another is taken to the national capital by special messenger and the third is filed with the judge of the federal district court that a copy will be available in case the messenger meets with mishap and the registered letter gets lost. Good fortune has attended messenger and mail alike, however, and none of the copies has ever been needed.

The most colorful of the entire group of documents is that which records Illinois' vote for Lincoln in 1860. The envelope in which it was contained is of a light blue and was sealed with a light pink shade of sealing wax. The document itself is bound with a pink ribbon of the shade most often seen on baby carriages. Some of the signatures are in green ink, some in black and others in blue, while the whole is dignified with the seal of the state of Illinois, which that year was a bright green.

It sets forth that separate ballots were cast for president and vice president, as is still required by law, and that in addition to Lincoln as president the vice-presidential choice was Hannibal Hamlin of Maine.

At that time Illinois had 11 electoral votes but its rapid growth has since increased the membership to 28.

IN NEW YORK

New York—"Where do all these big doormen in front of the hotels come from?" a friend asked me last night. "I don't know," I answered. "But I'll tell you some of their names. There's Peter Martin in front of the Waldorf. And that tall, slim drink-of-water at the Pennsylvania is William O'Brien. Stamps, Davenport is at the Plaza. Jim Woods is the Commodore. August Lee at the Ritz. Michael Cilly at the Vanderbilt. Jim Griffen at the Roosevelt and Patrick Clancy at the Biltmore. If I had one guess, I'd say they came from Ireland."

And speaking of hotels, there is one good story every day in each one of the big hosteries here. They each have a population as great as that of many incorporated towns. The other day a silver butter plate was returned to the Waldorf from a young man in the middle west. He took it as a souvenir in 1915 while on a corn boy's trip and it has been on his conscience ever since. Recently a woman returned a Gideon Society Bible which she had taken. She borrowed it because she was in a state of great trouble and needed its comfort, then became uncomfortable because she had taken it without permission.

There are several small shops in town where piano rolls are made on special orders for player-pianos. On the lower west side is a shop where Syrians and Turks go with the scores of old world songs and serenades scribbled on scraps of paper. The operator makes the master roll from that. A reproduction is sold for a dollar or two, but if the patron wants the master roll he pays $25 and up.

Farther up on the west side is another shop where the Italians have piano rolls made. Gay young men compose their own airs, have the thing transcribed for the player-piano, buy the master roll and present it with the proper inscription to their fair ones.

Of course, if the young Romeo is a bit fickle, he may have 17 copies struck off the master roll at one time and inscribe and distribute them at his own discretion.

Fortune Telling goes on in New York in many forms, but it's never

The measure also declares all rules of court procedure now in effect, either by common law or by statute, to be rules of the court and subject to be ruled by it.

TEXT OF PRESIDENT COOLIDGE'S INAUGURAL SPEECH

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, March 4.—The text of President Coolidge's inaugural address delivered today, is as follows;

My Countrymen:

No one can contemplate current conditions without finding much that is satisfying and still more that is encouraging. Our own country is leading the world in the general readjustment to the results of the great conflict. Many of its burdens will bear heavily upon us for years, and the secondary and indirect effects we must expect to endure for some time. But we are beginning to comprehend more definitely what course should be pursued, what remedies ought to be applied, what actions should be taken for our deliverance, and are clearly manifesting a determined, will faithfully and conscientiously to adopt these methods of relief. Already we have sufficiently rearranged our domestic affairs so that confidence has returned, business has revived, and we appear to be entering an era of prosperity which is gradually reaching into every part of the nation. Realizing that we can not live unto ourselves alone, we have contributed of our resources to the suffering and the settlement of the disputes among the European nations. Because of what America is and what America has done, a firmer courage, a higher hope, inspires the heart of all humanity.

These results have not occurred by mere chance. They have been secured by a constant and enlightened effort marked by many sacrifices and extending over many generations. We can not continue these brilliant successes in the future, unless we continue to learn from the past. It is necessary to keep the traditions of experience and of action, but if we are to have any science of government. If we wish to erect new structures, we must have a definite knowledge of the old foundations. We must realize that human nature is about the most constant thing in the universe and that the essentials of human relationship do not change. We must frequently take our bearings from these fixed stars of our political firmament if we expect to hold a true course. If we examine carefully what we have done, we can determine the more accurately what we can do.

We stand at the opening of the one hundred and fiftieth year since our national consciousness first asserted itself by unmistakable action with an array of force. The old sentiment of detached and dependent colonies disappeared in the new sentiment of a united and independent nation. Men began to discard the narrow confines of a local charter for the broader opportunities of a national constitution. Under the eternal urge of freedom we became an independent nation. A little less than 50 years later that freedom and independence were reasserted in the field of the world's judgment, supported and secured by the Monroe doctrine. The narrow fringe of states along the Atlantic seaboard advanced its frontiers across the hills and plains of an intervening continent until it passed down the golden slope to the Pacific. We made freedom a birthright. We extended our domain over distant islands in order to safeguard our own interests and accepted the consequent obligation to bestow justice and liberty upon less favored peoples. In the defense of our own ideals and in the general cause of mankind entered the Great War. When victory had been fully secured, we withdrew to our own shores unrecompensed, save in the consciousness of duty done.

Through all these experiences we have enlarged our freedom, we have strengthened our independence. We have been, and propose to be, more and more American. We believe that we can best serve our own country and most successfully discharge our own obligations to humanity by continuing to be openly and candidly, intensely and scrupulously, American. If we have any heritage, it has been the spirit of law and destiny, we found it in that direction.

But if we wish to continue to be distinctly American, we must continue to make that term comprehensive enough to embrace the legitimate desires of a civilized and enlightened people determined in all their relations to pursue a conscientious and religious life. We can not permit ourselves to be narrowed and dwarfed by slogans and phrases. It is not the adjective, but the substantive, which is of real importance. It is not the name of the action, but the result of the action which is the chief concern. It will be well not to be too much disturbed by the thought of retarding or entangling our pacifists and militarists. The physical configuration of the earth has separated us from all of the Old World, but the common brotherhood of man, the highest law of all our being, has united us in inseparable bonds with all humanity. Our country represents nothing but peaceful intentions toward all the earth, but it ought not to fail to maintain such a military force as comports with the dignity and security of a great people. It ought to be a balanced force, intensely modern, capable of defense by sea and land, beneath the surface and in the air. But it should be so conducted that all the world may see it, not a menace, but an instrument of security and peace.

This nation believes thoroughly in an honorable peace under which the rights of its citizens are to be everywhere protected. It has never found that the necessary enjoyment of such a peace could be maintained only by a great and threatening array of arms. In common with other nations, it is now more determined than ever to promote peace through friendliness and good will through mutual understandings and mutual forbearance. We have never practiced the policy of competitive armaments. We recently committed ourselves, by covenants with the other nations to a limitation of our sea power. As one result of this, our navy ranks larger, in comparison, than it ever did before. Removing the burden of expense and jealousy, which must always accrue from a keen rivalry, is one of the most effective methods of diminishing that unreasonable hysteria and misunderstanding which are the most potent means of fomenting war. This policy represents a new departure in the world. It is a thought, an ideal, which has led to an entirely new sense of action. It will not be easy to maintain. Some never moved from their old position, some are constantly slipping back to the old ways of thought and the old action of seizing a musket and relying on force. America has taken the lead in this new direction and that lead America must continue to hold. If we expect others to rely on our fairness and justice we must show that we rely on their fairness and justice.

If we are to judge by past experience, there is much to be hoped for in international relations from frequent conferences and consultations. We have before us the beneficial results of the Washington conference and the Geneva negotiations, some of which were in response to our suggestions and in some of which we were active participants. Even the failures can not but be accounted useful and an immeasurable advance over threatened or actual warfare. If we are to judge by past experience, there should be full and free expression and an opportunity for independence of action within the party. There is no salvation in a narrow and bigoted party. But the party is to be responsible party, government, the party label must be something more than a mere device for securing office. Unless those who are elected under the same party designation are willing to assume sufficient responsibility and exhibit sufficient loyalty and coherence, so that they can cooperate with each other in the support of the broad general principles of the party, then the party is destined to be mocked. No decision is made at the polls, and there is no representation of the popular will. Common honesty and good faith with the people who support a party at the polls require that party, when it enters office, to assume the control of that portion of the Government to which it has been elected. Any other course is bad faith and a violation of the party pledges.

When the administration bestowed its confidence upon a party by naming a majority in the Congress, it has a right to expect such unity of action as will make the party majority an effective instrument of government.

This administration has come into power with a very clear and definite policy of economic dissipation to a nation already in financial decay.

These policies of better international understandings, greater economy, and lower taxes have contributed largely to peaceful and prosperous industrial relations. Under the helpful influences of restrictive immigration and a protective tariff, employment is plentiful, the rate of pay is high, and wage earners are in a state of contentment seldom before seen. Our foreign debts and certain electric utilities have given such movements their actual support, we ought not to withhold our own sanction because of any small and unessential difference, but only upon the ground of the most important and compelling fundamental reasons. We can not sustain our independence on our sovereignty, but we ought to engage in no reclamations of logic, no sophistry, and no subtleties to argue away the undoubted duty of this country by reason of the might of its numbers, the power of its resources, and its position of leadership in the world, actively and comprehensively, to signify its approval and to bear its full share of the responsibility of a candid and disinterested attempt at the establishment of an tribunal for the administration of even-handed justice between nations in action. The weight of our enormous influence must rest upon the shoulders of a reign of force, but of law and trial, not by battle but by reason.

We have never any wish to interfere in the political conditions of any other countries. Especially are we determined not to become implicated in the political controversies of the Old World. With a great deal of hesitation, we have responded to appeals for help to maintain order, protect life and property, and establish responsible government in some of the small countries of the Western Hemisphere. Our private citizens have advanced a large sum of money to assist in the necessary financing and care of the Old World. We have not failed, nor shall we fail to respond whenever necessary to mitigate human suffering and assist in the rehabilitation of distressed nations. These too, are requirements which must be met by reason of our vast powers and the weight of our influence.

When we turn from what was rejected to inquire what was accepted, the policy that stands out with the greatest clearness is that of economy in public expenditure with reduction and reform of taxation. The principle involved in this effort is that of conservation, that of separation of independent governments, our divided sovereignty, composed of Nation and State, the matchless wisdom that is enshrined in our Constitution, and the need content effort and tireless vigilance for their protection and safety.

In a republic the first rule for the guidance of the citizen in obedience to the law is: Under a despotism the law may be imposed upon the subject. He has no voice in its making, and his influence in its administration, it does not represent him. Under a free government the citizen makes his own laws, chooses his own administrators, which do represent him. Those who want their rights respected under the Constitution and the law ought to set the example themselves of observing the Constitution and the law. While some may be those of high intelligence who violate the law at times, the law-abiding and the patriotic always violate it. Those who disregard the rules of society are not exhibiting a superior intelligence, are not promoting freedom and independence, are not following the path of civilization, but are displaying the traits of ignorance, of servitude, of savagery, and treading the way that leads back to the jungle.

The essence of a republic is represented in its people. Our Congress represents the people and the States.

If extravagance were not reflected in taxation, and through taxation both directly and indirectly injuriously affecting the people, it would not be of so much consequence.

The wisest and soundest method of solving our tax problem is through economy.

It is the only method which this country is best in a position to adopt that simple remedy. We do not any longer need war-time revenues.

The collection of any taxes which are not absolutely required, contribute to the public welfare, is only a species of legalized larceny. Under this Republic the rewards of industry belong to those who earn them. The only constitutional tax is the tax which protects the public necessity. The property of the country belongs to the people of the country. Their title is absolute. They do not support any privileged class; they do not need to maintain great military forces; they ought not to be burdened with a great array of public employees. They are not required to make any contribution to Government expenditures except that which they voluntarily assess upon themselves. Whenever taxes become burdensome a remedy can be applied by the people, but if they do not act for themselves, no one can be very successful in acting for them.

The time is arriving when we can further tax reduction, when, unless we wish to hamper the people in their right to earn a living, we must have tax reform. The method of convenience ought not to impede the transaction of business. It ought to encourage it. I am opposed to extremely high rates, because they produce static or no revenue, because they are bad for the country, and finally, because they are wrong. We can not improve the social conditions through any system of injustice, even if we attempt to inflict it upon the rich. Those who suffer the most harm will be the poor. This country believes in prosperity. It is absurd to suppose that it is envious of those who are already prosperous. The wise and correct course to follow in taxation and all other economic legislation is not to destroy those who have already secured success but to create conditions under which every one will have a better chance to be successful. The verdict of the country has been given on this question. That verdict stands. We shall do well to accept it.

These questions involve moral issues. We need not concern ourselves much about the rights of property if we will faithfully observe the rights of persons. Under our Constitution their rights are supreme. It is not property but the right to hold property, both great and small, which our Constitution guarantees. All owners of property are bound with a sense of duty. Their rights and duties have been revealed, through the conscience of society, to have a divine sanction. The very stability of our society rests upon production and conservation. For individuals or for governments to waste and squander their resources is to deny these rights and disregard these obligations. The result of economic dissipation to a nation is almost immediately decay.

These policies of better international understandings, greater economy, and lower taxes have contributed largely to peaceful and prosperous industrial relations. Under the helpful influences of restrictive immigration and a protective tariff, employment is plentiful, the rate of pay is high, and wage earners are in a state of contentment seldom before seen. Our transportation systems have been greatly improved, recovering and have been able to meet all the requirements of the service. Agriculture has been very slow in reviving, but the price of cereals at last indicates that the time of its deliverance is at hand.

We are not without our problems, but our most important problem is not to secure new advantages but to maintain those which we already possess. Our system of government is based upon the separation of independent governments, our divided sovereignty, composed of Nation and State, the matchless wisdom that is enshrined in our Constitution, and the need content effort and tireless vigilance for their protection and safety.

A careful comparison shows that the City of Dixon is favored with water rates considerably lower than those enjoyed by the majority of cities throughout the country, either municipally or corporately owned. ## THE R. S. KLINE TIRE STORE

(By V. S. Mullen.)

Starting as a small, rather unpretentious concern in 1914, but with a policy which aimed to make it a really trustworthy firm to do business with, the Kline Tire Store, located at 114 East First street, has developed in its ten years of existence into the leading establishment of its kind between the cities of Chicago and Des Moines.

The tire and accessory business is one that calls for as much knowledge of economic conditions as does the operation of a bank. The manager must know the price which his customers will be able to pay for their merchandise—what types will most adequately meet the use to which they will be put. In addition, he must keep pace with the inventions which revolutionize the automotive industry and judge whether or not he can recommend their use to his customers.

The tire and accessory store which is to be successful in a community such as this must plan to have everything in stock from valve stem cores to oversized casings for heavy truck duty. The store which is the subject of this sketch carries in stock approximately three thousand items and, in addition to this extensive stock, still find it necessary to place many special orders, so varied are the calls for merchandise which are made upon them.

The extensive use of tires and tubes in the daily commercial life and their importance as an article of commerce makes the tire industry one of the most important branches of the automotive world. In the early days of the motor car, when it was still in the infant stage of its development, a tire was simply "a tire." Today it is far different. Chemists and manufacturers have been constantly studying to learn to build tires to give the best of service. Thus there are on the market today many makes, some hardly known at all and others nationally advertised and nationally used.

The construction of so many different makes of tires brings up the question as to who is authority to pass on the best tires. It stands to reason that the man who should qualify as an expert on tires and who is in a position to give good reliable information on tire construction is the man who devotes his time exclusively to the tire business and operates a vulcanizing plant in conjunction with his tire house. This man is certain to choose for his trade a reliable stock of tires which will bring "repeat business," because tires are like everything else in the commercial world: the repeat sales make the business possible. Hundreds of satisfied customers attest the superior qualities of the tires which are handled exclusively by the Kline Tire Store.

The service rendered by this firm is the particular pride of the proprietor and no expense or effort has been spared to make this service complete in every detail. A steam heated service station, capable of accommodating several cars, is accessible from the alley-way at the rear of the store where all service work is handled in record time.

In addition to owning and operating the Kline Tire Store in Dixon, Mr. Kline established a similar store in Sterling some seven years ago, which is now known as the Kline-Courneyer Tire & Accessory Store, Mr. Courneyer buying a part interest in the firm and taking over the management of that place two years ago. The Sterling store handles the same nationally advertised lines and is served under identically the same policy as the local store.

In addition to the successful operation of the Dixon and Sterling tire and accessory stores, Mr. Kline is also a partner with Mr. C. H. Newman in the Riverview Garage, located at the corner of Ottawa and River streets. This service station, the only one of its kind in this section of Illinois, was opened to the public January 1st, 1924. To carry out their ideas of "specialized service to auto owners," the firm erected the largest exclusive auto storage between Chicago and the Mississippi River. This large brick structure, 100x150 feet, affords live storage for 150 cars all on the ground floor. In addition to the storage complete gasoline, oil, Alemite greasing, and auto laundry service is maintained under the most efficient supervision, and it is significant to note that, since the date of its opening, the doors of this place of business have never been closed to the public day or night.

Mr. Kline is one of the most popular of the younger business men of Dixon and takes a vital interest in its commercial and civic development, standing ready at all times to do everything in his power to assist in any movement which has for its purpose the betterment of the city.

Styling Your Neck

They say that an ounce of taffy is worth a pound of epitaphy. So, the writer makes bold to arrogate to himself the distinction of being the first to foretell the wide vogue of the wing collar and the bow-knot tie. It needed no Jeremiah, Obadiah or Zachiari to prophesy this change, for style, in its cyclic swing, always comes back to what has gone before. Not only is the white wing collar one of the sprucest shapes for town, lounge and business wear, but it is even being worn in patterns of colored stripes and diminutive checks.

This is a decided departure from the same old, tame old thing.

Only wear the combination of wing collar and bow-knot tie if it is becoming to you, for it does not suit the cut of every man's jib. He who looks best in such a mode of neckdress is the one with a long, lean face. Wing collar and bow-knot tie, then, convey the impression of broadening of the face. Contrariwise, the short, round face is only accentuated by a collar and tie that seem to make it even more globular. Consideration of these details makes a man well-dressed. No one can wear all styles with equal becomingness. You have to study yourself and practice selective discrimination between what befits you and what doesn't.

Three different shapes of bow-knot ties for Spring are sketched here. The topmost one, of spotted English foulard silk, has wide, rounded tips. The middle, vividly striped, is narrow and elongated, with pointed tips. The undermost tie, of figured silk, is the familiar batwing or butterfly form having a right-and-tight knot and spreading, fan-shaped ends. All three shapes are smart and good-looking but only to the precise degree that they are suitable to the wearer's face.

Now, fierce or gentle reader, don't wave such ties aside with the remark that they are "too extreme for me" or "my friends would give me the hal-hal!" and similar objections born of timidity or self-consciousness. You will never achieve a truly smart appearance; you will never find out what you really ought to wear unless you try different effects. Don't follow the same fashion day in, day out, year in, year out. It's great to alternate. The chief charm of correct dress is constant change.

DISTRICT MEETING ODD FELLOWS WAS HELD AT ROCHELLE

Members of Lodges of Vicinity Gathered There Wednesday.

Rochelle—Rochelle Post No. 403, American Legion, will sponsor the motion picture, "The Lost Battalion," which will be shown at the Majestic Theater, March 6th. Romance has no more golden tale to tell than the story of the Lost Battalion, that brave hand-to-hand struggle held by the men in the face of death, privation, hunger and the agony of undressed wounds, held out for six grim days against the encircling hordes in field gray in the Argonne forest. The play is enacted by survivors and around the sweethearts, wives and mothers of these doughboy heroes of 1917-1918 is woven a beautiful love story. The Post is to receive one half of the advance sale only.

The Post dues are now due and payable to R. L. Dall, Adjutant; B. L. Berne, Jack Barker or Commander Clarence A. Anderson. The Legion Carnival and Show are planned for April.

Citizens of Rochelle had a distinct pleasure Thursday evening, Feb. 28, in listening to the address of Capt. C. B. Hopkins of the Military Intelligence Department, U. S. A. at the Presbyterian Church at 8:00 o'clock on "Does America Need Defense."

Capt. Hopkins was brought to Rochelle in connection with the regular monthly banquet of the men's club held in the church parlor at 6:30.

The program consisted of selection by Crawell's orchestra, a chicken supper, selection by the American Legion quartet, readings by Miss Glennie Daubenspeck, a vocal solo by Dr. C. P. Clarke and the address by Capt. Hopkins.

The officers of the Mens Club are: F. J. Blenner, President; August Zimmerman, vice-president; Harold Cooper, treasurer; Clarence Oakes, secretary. The committee in charge of the banquet consisted of J. M. Daubenspeck, G. N. Grieve, A. T. Hustler, A. T. Guest, A. M. Guy, C. E. Valentine, M. V. Peterman, Jr., Phil W. May heads the March banquet committee.

The fire department was called out Saturday noon to extinguish two blazes. The first alarm was turned in from the Mrs. Harriet Blossom residence on Eighth street where a roof fire was put out. A prairie grass fire on vacant lots between twelfth and thirteenth streets north of Fourth avenue brought the department and the company beat the fire out with sticks.

Miss Ella M. Ebersole spent the week-end here in Sterling.

A. A. Burbank expects to leave early this month for Florida. This has been his custom annually for several years to avoid the March weather in Illinois. Mr. Burbank will be gone for a month or more.

Miss Blanche Gausepohl spent the week-end in Chicago.

The oratorio, "Elijah," as set to music by the great master, Mendelssohn was beautifully rendered by ten artists and two accompanists at a Vesper service held in the First Presbyterian church auditorium at 4:30 Sunday afternoon. The church was crowded for the rendition which was under the personal direction of Madam Hess-Burr of Chicago. The concerted parts were sung by trained voices. Arthur Reipe, organist and local tenor, was one of the soloists and Miss Clarice Knutson, contralto, assisted in the chorus of ten voices. The soloists were: Lucille Miller, Mrs. Lester Wilhelm, Arthur Reipe and John F. Ward, assisted by Mrs. Dysart, Miss Knickle, Miss Holt and Mr. Schoenig, all students of Madam Hess-Burr. Without a doubt this splendid oratorio was the most difficult ever attempted before a Rochelle audience and the offering was exceedingly well received, a fine tribute to Madam Hess-Burr and the entire chorus and organist.

The choir of the First Presbyterian church will sponsor an organ recital auditorium, Wednesday evening, March 14th.

G. A. Lrazier expects to go to Minnesota to consult the Mayo Bros. this week.

The Corner Drug Store will soon be remodeled and its floor space considerably. The room formerly occupied by the Rankin Jewelry store has been leased by John D. Sweeney and the partition will be removed, which will make quite an improvement. Extensive alterations will be made, and when completed, Mr. Sweeney will have one of the most modern drug stores in this section.

Although not attended by many members of other lodges except Rochelle and DeKalb, the first Odd Fellows' district meeting since the Ogle county city's transfer in this district took place Wednesday evening and was a most enthusiastic gathering. The session was held in the Odd Fellows' Hall here and due to the understanding on the part of the Rochelle members, had been referred to as a closed meeting. However, De Kalb and Sycamore did not understand it as such and many Rebekahs were in attendance. Twenty-five Odd Fellows and Rebekahs were in attendance from De Kalb, Lindenwood and Sycamore were also well represented.

District President L. E. Fetherill of Sycamore called the meeting to order at 8:30 and due to the absence of the secretary of the district, minutes of the previous meeting could not be read. Routine business matters were taken care of quickly and the meeting was opened up under the head of the good of the order.

Some good talks were given by members of all lodges represented, including DeKalb, Sycamore, Lindenwood and Rochelle.

After the meeting had adjourned the Rochelle members served an excellent lunch, after deciding that the next meeting would be held in Sycamore some time in March.

Members of the Rochelle Catholic Ladies Club, an organization which has enjoyed weekly bridge parties all this season, will employ their evenings during Lent in study. They will take up the study of American history and the constitution of the United States. Mrs. Martin Kennedy is chairman of the committee and has appointed leaders for the meetings which come during the Lenten period.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. King, who are in Los Angeles, Calif., will start for Rochelle about the middle of March.

On Thursday evening, March 5th, at about ten o'clock in the DeKalb high school gymnasium, Rochelle will play her first game of the District Tournament against the Genoa high school. If the Purple and White are successful in this engagement with Genoa, they will meet the winner of the Belvidere-DeKalb game on Friday evening, March 5th, about 9:00 o'clock.

There will be seven sessions during the tournament, Thursday afternoon and evening, Friday morning, afternoon and evening, and Saturday afternoon and evening. There will be three games in each session on Thursday. There will be two games in all other sessions. This is so arranged that winning teams will have as much time as possible to rest and recuperate after the games.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Zimmerman, who have been in California since December 15th, have returned from Peter Bent Brigham Hospital, Boston, Mass., Friday evening, returning with his brother, J. M. Weeks. Joyce is getting nicely rested up from his trip and needless to say is glad to get home.

Mr. and Mrs. Seth W. Moon welcome a fine baby daughter at the Lincoln Hospital, Friday morning.

St. Louis' New Market to be Model Institution

St. Louis—(By the Associated Press)—When St. Louis' new $150,000 million market, the second largest in the country, is turned over to the public use next June, it will have many unusual provisions to safeguard buyers. One of them will be six scales, distributed at various points where buyers may make free use of them to determine whether correct weights have been given. Any discrepancies may be reported to the seller or to the market master.

Many drastic regulations will be imposed on keepers of stands. Each will be required to sell only articles specified in his contract with the city and no leases will be granted, rentals being entirely on a monthly basis. If any dealer is found to be dishonest, Cypress is said to be the most durable of woods.

FOR TEN YEARS—DEPENDABLE

Exceptional dependability has been a characteristic of Dodge Brothers Motor Car since the day the first of these sturdy cars was marketed.

Not once in a decade has it failed to uphold and enhance its reputation for faithful performance.

The reason for its consistent goodness and continued betterment points directly back to the ideals of the founders.

Instead of fluctuating between an endless series of annual models, they determined to concentrate on the perfection of a single chassis.

Dodge Brothers Motor Car today is the embodiment of that ideal—an ideal that will endure as long as the institution itself.

While attending the Auto Show, March 5, 6 and 7 be sure to and see the
